DEMONSTRATIONS MARK EFFORT TO SAVE BANK CLERK

Lawyers Claim Crabb Was "Crucified" by Prosecutors

Pekin, Ill., June 10.—(AP)—James Crabb's lawyers accused prosecutors today of having "persecuted and crucified" the young bank clerk to obtain a statement that he killed his wife with a pistol during a struggle for possession of the weapon.

Chief Counsel W. J. Reardon made the charge in final arguments in the manslaughter trial of James before a circuit court jury. James was accused of the shooting of Betty Collison Crabb early the morning of March 1 in the Delavan, Ill., home of James' banker father, Willis.

The eldest of the legal triumvirate fighting to save Jimmy from imprisonment accompanied his address with demonstrations. At times he was forced to raise his voice to compete with a thunderstorm that whipped over the little courthouse.

Efforts of Defense

Taking the death weapon in his hand, Reardon pressed the muzzle against his chest, clicked the hammer twice and again in an effort to disprove the state's contention that pretty Betty could not have shot herself and produced a wad such as the one that killed her.

Next he deplored the fact he could not bring Betty's deathbed to the courtroom, but he brought out two pieces of wood and set them up to illustrate the course of the bullet.

Lawyer Storms

"They took over the state's attorney's office, and when they did that the hounds of hell were loosed," Reardon stormed.

"While these outside people ran our offices and held Jimmy illegally, they brought him milk and he drank the fatal milk. And soon they came forward with a statement. Is it any wonder?"

"They persecuted him and crucified him with questions. They thought they could put another one over."

The closing arguments were completed shortly after noon and the case was ready to go to the jury after instructions from the court. The jurors were placed in custody for the first time when court adjourned for the luncheon recess. They will be released when they report a verdict.

Nixon Repudiates Confession Which Would Help Other

Chicago, June 10.—(AP)—Thomas Nixon went back to prison routine today, his hopes for freedom dashed temporarily at least, by a young Negro's repudiation of a confession.

McCall, 39, is serving five years. He was convicted of raping Miss Virginia Austin, a New York doll designer whom an introducer attacked in a hotel in 1936. He has stoutly maintained he is innocent.

Police investigators reported Monday that Robert Nixon, an 18-year-old Negro accused of slaying five women, had confessed the attack for which McCall was sentenced.

Yesterday they brought McCall to Criminal Court to hear Nixon clear his name. Nixon shocked everyone by repudiating the confession.

Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert Crowley said he was convinced Nixon was guilty and asserted he would ask executive clemency for McCall if no evidence were developed to prove his innocence.

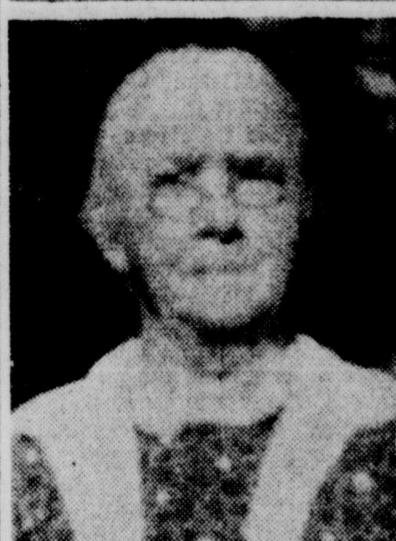

Woman, 52, Looking Forward To Career In College Halls

Anna Ill., June 10.—(AP)—Thirty-two years ago illness forced Mrs. Mabel Keith Lesar to leave school, but today, at the age of 52, she is looking forward to joining the youngest of her three sons as a student at the University of Illinois.

Mrs. Lesar received her high school diploma this year as a member of the Anna-Jonesboro class.

Widowed during the influenza epidemic of 1918, Mrs. Lesar was left with her small children. She had one ambition—to raise good sons. She met the problem of a family income by gardening, raising chickens and repairing shoes. She now hopes to gain the education she has given her sons.

JAPS ROUND OUT FORTNIGHT OF CANTON RAIDS

Bomb Fringes of Now Wrecked City, 3000 Reported Dead

Hongkong, June 10.—(AP)—Japanese bombing planes tonight rounded out two weeks of daily bombardments of Canton or its environs with an attack on the outskirts of the teeming South China metropolis.

The raiders withheld their bombs when they passed over congested areas but the distant thunder of bombardment showed they attacked the fringes of Canton where the waterworks and other utilities plants are located. The attack brought chilling fear to the city's residents who had witnessed raids which in two weeks caused 3,000 deaths and injury to 5,000 persons.

A delayed report on an attack last night showed that a new power plant under construction was nearly destroyed. The waterworks also was damaged, causing a sharp curtailment in the supply and acute suffering in the sweltering city.

MRS. H. CURRAN PASSED AWAY AT HOME THURSDAY

Mrs. Susan Curran, 80, widow of the late Hugh Curran, and twin sister of Mrs. Margaret Buckley, 912 Galena avenue, passed away at her home, 926 Ottawa avenue, at 3:15 P. M. Thursday after a protracted illness. Funeral services will be held at the home at 10 A. M. tomorrow and at St. Patrick's Catholic church, of which she was a devout member at 10:30, with interment in Oakwood cemetery.

CUT RAILROAD

Shanghai, June 10.—(AP)—Japanese cut the Peiping-Hankow railroad for the first time south of the Yellow river today and launched an attack on Chengchow against feeble resistance as their drive inland through the heart of China gained momentum.

Chengchow is the junction of the Peiping-Hankow, main link between Hankow, China's provisional capital, and the central front, and the east-west Lunghai railroad, the eastern end of which the Japanese already have captured.

Hankow-Chengchow traffic was halted when a Japanese raiding column blew up a bridge south of Chengchow.

Warship Sunk

Chinese bombing planes sank a Japanese warship at Kweichow, on the Yangtze river, with a direct hit, a Chinese communiqué reported.

It was said an air squadron attacked the Japanese ship in the Yangtze within 30 miles of Anking, capital of Anhwei province and the next objective in Japan's push up the river toward Hankow.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, in the face of military reverses, declared China was closer than ever to "ultimate victory" and appealed to all friendly nations to and China with friendly boycotts, arms embargoes and other measures against Japan.

Mrs. Curran was essentially and by nature a mother. Her complete interest was in her home, her family and her friends. The children of her neighborhood especially loved her; for her sweet character, kindly nature and altogether wholehearted endeared her to all.

The sincere sympathy of the community goes out to the bereaved children and sisters.

London, June 10.—(AP)—Britain, fully backed by France and tired of shooting protests into Burgos pig-eonholes, concentrated today on finding a drastic but practical means of stopping the Spanish insurgents' deadly air raids on Anglo-French shipping.

George Bonnet, the French foreign minister, was reported to have told Sir Eric Phipps, the British ambassador in Paris, that France was willing to cooperate with London in "extreme measures" to end the Mediterranean scourge of lead and steel which has sunk or damaged at least 15 neutral ships in two weeks.

Sir Eric was believed to have reported to London that Bonnet was outraged by the savage attack yesterday on the French freighter Brisbane at Denia in which seven persons were killed and eight were wounded.

Adding to concern here, the French minister was said to have told the British ambassador he considered the Spanish problem "urgent," especially since Czechoslovakia's final municipal elections Sunday held a promise of a dangerous week-end in Europe.

Reliable quarters in Paris reported the belief there that Europe was on the eve of a new series of Nazi-Fascist inspired crises.

These reports said Stephan Osusky, Czechoslovak minister to Paris, told Bonnet before he left for Prague that the central European situation was delicate.

The preliminary plans are now being drawn and when completed Contractor George Lindquist of this city will begin work tearing down the old structure and erecting the new building, which will be a notable improvement in Dixon's business district.

HOME BUREAU UNIT TO MEET

On Tuesday the South Dixon unit of the Home Bureau will meet at the home of Mrs. William Hoyle.

Yesterday morning at an nuptial high mass at St. Mary's Catholic church in Walton a beautiful June wedding occurred uniting the lives of Miss Marie Conroy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Conroy of South Dixon, and LeRoy Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Long of Palmyra.

The wedding was solemnized by Rev. Fr. Dailey. Edward Conroy, brother of the bride, and Robert Blackburn served as altar boys.

The bridal party marched down the aisle to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March with Mrs. Carl Ackert presiding at the organ.

The charming bride was beautifully attired in a white floor-length gown with a long train. She wore a bridal veil of tulle crowned with a halo effect tiara set with pearls and brilliants.

The bridesmaid, Miss Catherine Conroy, sister of the bride, wore a gown of pink marquisette over taffeta with accessories to match.

The bride carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses and lilies of the valley and the bridesmaids' flowers were a corsage of Talisman roses.

The groom and his attendant, Donald Long, wore suits of navy.

A three-course wedding dinner was served to the bridal party and immediate relatives at the home of the bride's parents. The table was prettily decorated in pink and white and a large wedding cake served as the centerpiece.

Mrs. John Blackburn catered, assisted by Mrs. Kathryn Klein, Mrs. James O'Brien, Mrs. Mabel Brechon, Mrs. Martina Brechon and Miss Frances Brechon, aunts of the bride.

The waitresses were: the Misses Vivian Wolfram, Arville Dempsey, Winnifred Klein and Jane Conroy of Chicago.

Methodist Picnic Is Huge Success

Between four and five hundred people attended the first all church barbecue picnic sponsored by the Dixon Methodist church Thursday afternoon and evening. There was some difficulty in finding enough tables to accommodate everyone.

The barbecued meat was cooked to a turn over a period of 15 to 16 hours and every person present was enthusiastic as to the quality of not only the meat but other food served with the final course, chocolate covered ice cream. Mrs. Bills and her committee did not overlook anything in making this part of the picnic a great success. Paul Armstrong contributed in a large way to making the picnic a success.

CONCERNING THE HIGHEST COST OF BEING STUPID

Although there is little enough on the horizon these days to create optimism, it might be a sound idea to inquire whether we are really as badly off as our home-grown Jeremiahs seem to believe.

You can neither turn on your radio nor pick up your magazine or newspaper nowadays without hearing someone complain that we are in dire danger. We are about to lose all of our liberties, or we are slipping over the edge of the precipice into war, or our economic system is indulging in the last labored breathing that precedes final extinction; and the implication is that we somehow are pretty stupid and unworthy people to let ourselves get into such a mess.

Now it is perfectly true that we are in a bad mess, and there is no use in pretending otherwise. But the thing isn't altogether our fault, and we might be quicker about the business of getting out of this mess if we could understand just where the trouble lies.

The principal trouble seems to be the fact that we have moved into a world that makes more demands on its human inhabitants than it ever did before.

It is a densely populated world which has added to the ordinary problems of over-crowding a brand-new set of problems arising out of speedy communications and an unimaginably complex and intricate set of economic and political relationships.

It is a world, in other words, in which the consequences of men's acts run farther and more swiftly than they ever did before. The rise of a dictator, the fall of a currency, the closing of an industry, the failure of a crop—all of these things send their effects winging around the world with unimaginable speed, and no man can get far enough away to escape the ripples they create.

Which simply means that it costs more to make a mistake now than it used to. Any error in our handling of human relations exacts of us a penalty such as our grandfathers would not have dreamed of.

In plain English, we live in the sort of world now which demands that we be smarter people than we used to be. The price of survival is higher; the tax on stupidity and carelessness has gone up through the roof.

All of which may not be especially encouraging—except that it does indicate that our troubles do not arise because we are more stupid or more perverse than our forefathers were. To put it more simply, we have not deteriorated, and our troubles are not a by-product of some mass disintegration.

The main thing is to realize that we need to be more alert, less emotional, more intelligent—and try to guide ourselves accordingly.

NOT-SO-LIGHT FANTASTIC

"Now, boys and girls, from now on this is the way you're going to dance . . ."

How much further would a speaker with a message like that get in this country? About as far as Norman Thomas got in Newark.

Germany is something else again. The latest is dancing by decree, terpsichore in uniform, regimentation in the ballroom. The brains in the "cultural bureau" of the Nazi youth organization have gone into a huddle and come up with a set of iron-clad musts and must-nots which Germany's youth will henceforth observe—to music—or else.

Certain dances, and no others, are to be danced, and danced in particular way, at particular times, in certain situations. "A clean wind is sweeping through the dance halls," the bureau announces, but it sounds more as if the windows were being shut tight against every stray breeze.

There are odd-looking spectacles to be seen on American dance floors, but this is because there are some pretty odd people. It's their privilege here to dance oddly if they care to.

One of man's most primitive, fundamental, and personal forms of self-expression survive here. Germany appropriates it for the state and throws it into a straight jacket. We'll take the odd-looking dancers along with the freedom.

SOMETHING FOR THE FILES

Donald Carroll, who shot pretty Charlotte Matthiesen dead, and then was acquitted of the crime, moves into obscurity, leaving his story in the yellowing files of newspaper libraries. The last paragraph of the last story in those files could serve as it stands as the final disturbing paragraph in a piece of tragic fiction. It deserves repeating:

"I realize now," Carroll said, "that the trouble with most youngsters is that they think their parents know much less than they know. This is a mistake. Our parents know far more than we do—no matter what the problem is. A child should realize that his parents can help him, and he should confide in them. Gee, I wish I'd done what I've told you the other kids should do!"

There is nothing extraordinary about that. There is no art in the words. It all goes without saying. But it ought to be clipped out, anyway."

Boys won't clip it. Parents should. And mark it with Carroll's name, and put it away, and take it out and read it every once in a while.

Octagon House
BY PHOEBE ATWOOD TAYLOR

The Story So Far:

Asey Mayo, Cape Cod detective, is investigating the murder of Marina Lorne, whose husband's post office mural has aroused Quanomet. She was killed by a left handed blow from her sister's knife. Pam Frye is innocent as well as the agreeable Tim Carr, boarder at the Frye's Octagon House. Marina was married to Tim, unknown to Jack Lorne, and also had played around with wealthy Roddy Strutt. Then the barn is set on fire; Asey, Tim and Pam's father are knocked out, and two troopers disappear. The problem uppermost in Asey's mind is a $50,000 lump of ambergris which Pam found the day of the murder and Aaron Frye hid in the barn. He is convinced that the ambergris was not in the barn when it burned down.

"Brigham," Cummings said. "Oh, yes. I'd forgotten that pilot. So you're going to let Roddy slide?" "I'm goin' to let him sizzle," Asey said, "on the theory that the longer he sizzles, the better it'll be when we get him. You go see Aaron, Doc. I want to run the village an' find out how Hanson's comin' on with his trooper hunt." "Where can those fellows be?" "I wish I knew!" Asey said. "I wish I knew!"

As he went out on the back porch, Tim Carr drove up in his little coupe.

"I've been holdin' the bloodhounds, but there's no sign of O'Malley and Shorty," he reported. "Hanson is now little better than a psychopath."

"How's the reporters?" Asey asked. "Where are they?"

"Gorging themselves on shore dinners at that roadhouse near the junction. They ought to be lokey and waterlogged for hours to come. I mean, you can eat just so many steamed clams and wash them down with just so much beer before—what's the matter with you?"

"Timothy, my son," Asey said, "crawl back into your little lawned car. I just had a brain wave."

Sea Hunt

"You've had something," Tim agreed. "This rosy glow—look, you don't think you know where the troopers went to, do you?"

"I don't know where they went to," Asey said, "but I bet you $10 I know where they are now—let me drive, d'you mind? I'm in sort of a hurry, like. Waterlogged. That's the answer. Waterlogged. Hang on, Timothy."

The coupe backed down the driveway at a speed that made Timothy blink behind his glasses. Before they reached the corner, he was gripping the door strap with both hands.

"The right rear tire," Tim remarked in what he hoped was a conversational tone, "is quite old and very eccentric."

"Is it?" Asey said. "Handles nice, for a little car, don't she? We had one at the Porter testin' grounds, an' it run circles around our sixteen. If only they'd stand up!"

"That's exactly my point about the rear tire," Tim interrupted quickly. "If only it'd stand up when you go over fifty-five. But no matter what tubes you put in, it always seems to blow."

"Don't seem to be blowin' now," Asey said.

Tim watched the speedometer needle swing around the dial. At least, he thought, if the tire stood up, he could truthfully report to his grandmother that those last figures were not the fakes they had always imagined.

"What about the troopers?" he asked, suddenly remembering that the speed of the car and the stamna of the rear tire were not, after all, the principal issues.

"Oh," Asey said, "you gimme the idea when you talked about the reporters bein' waterlogged. It just occurs to me that we done a lot of land searchin', but we sort of ignored the water. Pretty silly if me not to think of it before. There's so much water around."

"So we're going to sea hunt, are we?" Timothy sounded very dubious.

"An' no one," Asey said sincerely, "could think of a much worse revenge than that. It occurs to me that Lorne ain't goin' to have an easy time gettin' his vine an' figure repaired."

"Not to speak of his grocery bill," Pam said. "His credit is mi—look, I'm goin' to yank some carrots and things for dinner. I'll be in the garden if you want me."

Waterlogged

"Jerry Chase kidded Jennings about the leaking pipes," Cummings went on with his story, "and they had to be forcibly separated. Asey, what about Roddy, the menaced? I think you ought to see him."

"Yup."

"Well, why don't you then?" Cummings demanded.

"I was waitin' to talk with that pilot of his, Brigham," Asey explained. "They told me last night at the hospital that I could see him this afternoon. After him, we go to Roddy. In one sense, I don't want to wait one bit. I've got a feelin' Roddy might try beatin' it, though I don't think he'll dare."

Will Asey find the troopers? Continued tomorrow.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND TRADE MARK REGISTERED By DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Diplomatic circles were mystified last week at the out-of-the-blue condemnation of civilian airplane bombing issued by the State Department.

The bombing of civilians has taken a tragic increase since the statement was issued, but just at that time was no worse than during several previous months. Therefore, diplomats were at a loss to understand the State Department's sudden concern.

Here is the inside explanation: Just two days before civilian bombing was condemned, the British had indicated to the State Department informally that they were going to invite us to join in investigating it.

So, knowing this official invitation was coming, the State Department decided to beat the gun. Partly to test out public opinion, partly also to avoid being accused once more of aping British initiative on June 3. On June 4 Sir Ronald Lindsay came in with the official British invitation to participate in the investigation of the atrocities which, the day before, we had so heartily condemned.

Anglo-American teamwork, smiled the diplomats.

Crowned

Reading Clerk Roger M. Calloway is wondering if it wouldn't be safer to wear a "tin" hat during turbulent sessions of the House of Representatives.

When the chamber flares into an uproar, which is often, Speaker Bankhead wields his gavel with might and main. Recently, the gavel suddenly came apart and the head went crashing into the unsuspecting cranium of Calloway, who stands facing outward below the Speaker.

Calloway sagged under the blow but recovered. Despite the solicitous urging of Bankhead to take him out, he continued his work.

But for the rest of the day when Bankhead hammered for order he did so with the head of the new gavel in his hand.

Disappointing Council

Senator Vandenberg isn't saying much about it, but his colleagues are twitting him on the report of the Advisory Council on Social Security.

You probably haven't heard much about this report because it is technical and has escaped attention in the press. But it represents the views of 24 outstanding business men and experts on the Social Security Act, and is considered extremely important.

The joke on Vandenberg is that he was primarily responsible for the creation of the Council.

Early in January, 1937, the presidentially ambitious Michigan opened a drive to reduce old-age pension assessments, asserting that they "needlessly create a fiscal and economic menace." His sharpshooting was so effective that the Senate Finance Committee finally appointed a sub-committee to study

ALL-STAR TILTThird Base Former

Associated Press Sports Writer.
Unless there's a major epidemic of broken legs, or train connections between Boston and Cincinnati give out, Mr. James Emery Foxx will be doing the American league's first-basing chores in the all-star game against the National league next month.

Jimmy's been in on the show before—in four of the five mid-summer classics—but never yet has he held down the first sack. Always he's been on the other corner, at third. This year, however, it's another story, what with Foxx taking the cover off the ball, Lou Gehrig amounting to just another ball player at the plate, and the rest of the opposition, with the possible exception of Hal Trosky, far behind Jimmy the walloper.

And when Jimmy travels to Cincinnati, he'll probably have company all the way in old Mose (Lean Letty) Grove.

Lefty is the big league's only 10-game winner so far this season, having reached that point in what looks like a 25-game year by blanking the Cleveland Indians, 8-0, yesterday.

Foxx drove in two runs behind Lefty's elbowing yesterday, and contributed his 18th homer of the year, which put him five up on his nearest swat rivals and kept him on a par with his 1932 mark of 58, the record for right-handed acesmen.

While the Sox were taking their series, two games to one, from the American league-leaders, the National league spotlight remained focussed on Chicago, where the New York Giants made it three straight over the Cubs.

Logan Relieves Carlton.

With the score tied in the ninth inning, two out and two Giants on base, Cholly Grimm summoned rookie Bob Logan to relieve Tex Carleton. Bob gave up a hit to the first batsman, walked the second to force a run, and finally tagged for another hit, scoring two more. By the time old Jack Russell rushed in to put out the fire, the Giants had the ball game sewed up, 8-5, and pulled a game and a half in front.

In the only other National league game, the Pirates clubbed Jim Turner for 10 hits and topped the Bees, 5-3, behind Mace Brown's fine relief pitching. The Dodgers and Cardinals were rained out.

The Yankees stopped playing cousin to the Chicago White Sox and whipped Jimmy Dykes' outfit, 5-3, principally through Bill Dickey's seventh homer of the year. This left the Yanks deadlocked with the Red Sox in the American league's second place, 3½ games back of the Indians.

Dookie Dario Lodigiani clouted a home with the bases loaded and paced the Athletics to an 8-5 win over the Detroit Tigers, ending Vernon Kennedy's run of nine straight victories. Jimmy Deshong and Pete Appleton pitched a four-hitter between them and the Washington Senators sank the St. Louis Browns, 6-4.

The American Gladiolus Society has registered more than 2243 distinct varieties of gladiolus.

The Hard Way

St. Charles, Mo., June 10.—(AP)—Golf Amateur Lyle Smith was not only proud today of his hole-in-one, but he boasted he made it the hard way.

The former University of Illinois athletic ace didn't even touch the green on the 125-yard waterhole of the St. Charles course yesterday, explained his companions.

The ball landed, they asserted, in the cup on the fly, and was wedged there by the flag stick.

FAG DAY PROCLAMATION.

Springfield, Ill., June 10.—(AP)—Governor Horner, in a proclamation today, designated June 14 as Flag Day and requested the national banner be displayed from all public buildings and business houses and homes in Illinois.

According to brewmasters, beer is at its best at a temperature of 45 degrees.

FLAG CHANCES OF CUBS REST
ON HARTNETTInjured, But Determined To Catch
100 Contests

Chicago, June 10.—(AP)—On the broad and sometimes weary shoulders of Charles Leo (Gabby) Hartnett may rest the pennant chances of the Chicago Cubs.

The jovial, 220-pound Irishman for years the Cub sparkplug, has been on the sidelines since last Saturday with a bruised left wrist.

That night he grinned and boomed "I'll be ready for those Giants," but he didn't get into the series won by the Terrywells' three victories to one, and it's certain the absence didn't do the Cub cause any good.

Gabby is determined to catch at least 100 games this season. If he can do it, the Cub's chances to win the flag will be bright. He's a great fighter. There's no question of who is the Cub leader on the field when he's behind the plate. He has fire and color that not only lends itself to teammates but reaches right up into the stands.

But he's 37 years old and that wrist bruise he suffered last Saturday shows what might happen any time to the Cubs and has happened to many a championship club—Injury to a key veteran which blots life's hopes.

No Good Replacements

For one thing, the Cubs haven't a capable replacement for the veteran who is in his 17th major league season. Ken O'Dea, the No. 2 receiver, is handy with a bat on occasion but can't handle pitchers and throw with Gabby. Bob Garbari looked good in the first game of the Cub-Giants series but he needs experience.

Where Gabby's absence hurts most, however, is in the Cub attack. The Chicagoans have been weak with the stick, staying at the top or closer to it largely through brilliant pitching and steady defensive work. Gabby, a great "clutch" batter, gets hits when men are on base and when they count the most. He also is a great steady influence to pitchers, who say he makes an ideal "target."

With his intense love of the game and flaming competitive spirit Gabby stands a good chance of reaching his 100-game goal this season. If he catches that many he will wipe out the record for stamina established for catchers by Ray Schalk of the White Sox, with whom Hartnett now is tied in catching 100 or more games for 12 seasons. Gabby has a great start, having caught 32 thus far this campaign, and he'll give the injury jinx an argument all the way.

GOOD THOUGHTS

The less there is of fear so much the less generally is there of danger.

—Livy.

As sure as God is good, so surely there is no such thing as necessary evil.

—Southey.

God is all love; it is He who made everything, and He loves everything that He has made.

—Henry Brooks.

All I have seen teaches me to trust the Creator for all I have not seen.

—Emerson.

To point out the need to be free from fear is comparatively easy. How to accomplish this desirable end is not so easy, unless one looks to God. The perfect remedy for fear is to strengthen faith through increasing our understanding of God. How can this be done? When it is learned that God is infinite good, omnipresent and omnipotent, the belief in evil is destroyed.

—Christian Science Sentinel.

God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind.

Louisville, June 10—(AP)—Those scrappy Indianapolis Indians, who aren't conceding a thing to any team in the American Association, turned their power on the cellar-staffing Louisville Colonels today.

The Tribe bounced into a tie with Kansas City for the circuit leadership last night, defeating Minneapolis 8 to 2 while Kansas City was taking a 5 to 3 defeat at the hands of the Columbus Red Birds. Indianapolis trounced the Millers with a 14 hit offense as the Millers were able to collect only five safeties.

Kansas City trailed from the start as the Red Birds scored four runs in the first two frames. The Blues were able to collect only eight runs as the victors picked up 11 bungles. Effective relief pitching by Mike Matlak gave the Red Birds the game.

St. Paul defeated Louisville 8 to 2 in a game in which each team collected a dozen hits and played errorless ball. In a fourth night game, a free hitting affair, Toledo defeated Milwaukee 12 to 10 even though outhit by the Brewers 16 to 13. The victors scored nine runs in the first three innings.

ILLINOIS SETS UP 3-YEAR PLAN OF GOVERNMENT

"Little Legislature" To Smooth Law-Making Machinery

Springfield, Ill., June 10—(AP)—Illinois' latest experiment in government—the legislative council or "little legislature"—has initiated a three year plan intended to smooth the state's law-making machinery.

Set up as a fact-finding board to study and recommend legislation in advance of General Assembly sessions, the 22 member council will researchers to work on five subjects including public schools and the neophyte southern Illinois oil industry.

The council must, at least a month before the 61st General Assembly convenes in January, announce results of its studies and program for the information of legislators, the press and public.

Other subjects on the research agenda include the extent to which Illinois labor is used on public works projects in state, reapportionment of Circuit Court districts and a study of game and fish laws.

Research Director Charles M. Kneier, University of Illinois political science professor who looks like Raymond Moley, said he expected all five studies would be completed in time for scheduled September and November meetings when the council will formulate recommendations to the 1939 regular session.

Kneier, 39, has been on the Illinois faculty since 1930 and previously taught political science at the Universities of Texas and Nebraska. He was granted a leave of absence to accept the $5,000 a year post of council director. Assisting him is J. P. Ilssakoff, also a University of Illinois political scientist.

Fathers Council Plan

Senator T. V. Smith, Chicago philosopher-politician, fathered the council plan in the legislature but it is headed now by Rep. Benjamin S. Adamowski, Chicago, Democratic floor leader in the House. It is composed of ten members of each House with Lieut. Gov. John Stelle and Speaker Louie E. Lewis as ex-officio members.

Brundage made that statement last night in commenting on the resignation from the committee of William J. Bingham, Harvard athletic director and chairman of the 1936 U. S. Olympic track and field committee. Bingham has disassociated himself from all connections with the 1940 games, awarded to Japan.

Brundage said the committee can do nothing, nor is it attempting to do anything about the conflict between Japan and China.

Expressing regret that the committee would no longer have the support of Bingham, Brundage said that "if the international Olympic committee had to find a country whose present and past history was free from war and aggression in which to hold the games, there would be no games."

Kneier disputed claims of some critics that the council would usurp powers of the legislature itself.

Any legislator can introduce a proposal for the council's study, but the research department will initiate no legislation," he explained. "Our job is to study only those subjects that the council refers to us."

The Illinois council was patterned after those of Kansas and several other states and Kneier predicted it would "become important."

Richard J. Barr, Joliet Republican and Dean of the Senate, proposed the council's study of public schools. Chairman Adamowski asked the survey "looking toward the regulation, supervision and licensing of the oil industry." The study is not for use in the present special session, Kneier said.

SEA LIONS, as well as others of the eared seals, progress on land in a waddling walk . . . with the hind flippers serving as legs. The hair seals, which have no external ears, are unable to move in the above manner. Their hind flippers are grown solidly to the tail, and are directed permanently backwards.

To Art Clayton and family:

We neighbors all are here tonight.

To show you, Art, that we are mighty glad you took the step.

Yes, glad as we can be.

We do not yet know Mary well.

But this much we do know,

You showed good sense in taking

Art.

For more than just a beau.

And we are glad for Ronnie too. We know hell mind the rule.

And he's the kind of boy we need in our White Temple school.

Our school had nearly faded out.

But now with this new start,

It may encourage others near

To also do their part.

And so we welcome you tonight

Into our neighborhood.

And hope that all of you will stay.

And just to do a little more

Than offer our good wishes

We've brought to you this evening.

This set of china dishes.
